

St. Charles Community Schools

The Board of Education for St. Charles Community Schools is in search of a new superintendent.

St. Charles is located in Saginaw County, approximately 20 miles southwest of Saginaw. Residents enjoy rural and small-town living, with many commuting to work in nearby Saginaw, Midland and other larger towns. This district is big enough to offer robust educational programs and athletic/club opportunities, yet small enough to offer the family-like feel many residents value. The community has palpable “Bulldog Pride” with many devoted educators and community members. The district is proud to have had only four Superintendents serve the district over the previous 31 years. The Shiawassee Flats and the Shiawassee National Wildlife Refuge provide opportunities for hunting, fishing, canoeing, hiking, and birdwatching. Ringwood Forest and the rail trail provide great outlets for hiking and socializing with friends. St Charles is also home to Hartley Outdoor Education Center which has entertained and educated approximately 250,000 students and houses about 4,000 students per year. The area is full of beautiful wildlife, safe and friendly neighborhoods, and a rich history which dates back to the early 1800s.

St. Charles Community Schools’ mission “is to provide a positive, safe learning environment allowing all students to continuously grow as responsible leaders and respectful citizens in everyday life.”

St. Charles Community Schools are headquartered in St. Charles, Michigan. It is a part of the Saginaw Intermediate School District and serves the St. Charles area, including the village of St. Charles, the northern portions of Brant and St. Charles townships, and the southern portions of Fremont and Swan Creek townships. Its schools include St. Charles Elementary School, Anna M. Thurston Middle School, and St. Charles Community High School.
